COFFEE ROOMS

HISTORY

Since its opening in the late 1930s, the Tyneside Coffee Rooms has been a local institution. The result of accident rather than design, the Cinema's founder Dixon Scott initially intended to let out the three room suite of offices but no tenant could be found at the relatively high rent of £150 a year

The Scott family decided to make the space pay for itself a year later, and in 1938 the 'Tyneside Coffee Rooms' were opened. The grand title referred to both the main restaurant and the Smoking Room next door, which is now the Tyneside Cinema Digital Lounge.

During the Second World War the Coffee Rooms, like everyone else, had to deal with rationing and it became difficult to obtain many items, including butter. However, the inventive staff devised their own mixture of butter and margarine, which they described as a 'pleasant and nutritious alternative'!

The business continued strongly following the War, and legendary specialities such as kidneys on toast became firm favourites. The premises were taken over by the current owner in June 1984, and since then satisfied customers have included Sir Ian McKellen, Charlton Heston, John Hurt, Rowan Atkinson, Bryan Adams and many, many more.

In 2000 the entire building was recommended for a Grade II listing by English Heritage. Attention was drawn to this 'rare example of a fine cinema café', and the Coffee Rooms was an integral aspect of the building's recent restoration and redevelopment.

You can find out much more about this building's history and heritage by picking up an information leaflet from the box office, which will help guide you around the cinema.
